Mission:

"To improve the quality of life in Idaho through outdoor recreation and resource stewardship.”

Vision:

"We are innovators in outdoor recreation, committed to excellent service and resource stewardship. We foster experiences that renew the human spirit and promote community vitality."

In 1965, the Idaho State Legislature enacted legislation creating the Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation (IDPR). The legislation reads, in part:

"It is the intent of the Legislature that the Department of Parks and Recreation shall formulate and put into execution a long range, comprehensive plan and program for the acquisition, planning, protection, operation, maintenance, development and wise use of areas of scenic beauty, recreational utility, historic archeological or scientific interest, to the end that the health, happiness, recreational opportunities and wholesome enjoyment of life of the people may be further encouraged."

Before Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation was created, there were areas declared "Scenic and Recreational". These areas were parks and campgrounds taken care of by the State Land Board starting in 1907. Heyburn became the first Idaho State Park and first state park in the Pacific Northwest in 1908. In 1947 the Highway Department became responsible for parks along with any new ones. In 1949 the State Land Board again took control of the areas and in 1953 a Parks Division was created within the Land Board. A former superintendent of Glacier National Park took charge of the Idaho program in 1958.

In 1965, two things came together that resulted in the creation of a state park system in Idaho. First, Roland and Averell Harriman agreed to donate what is now Harriman State Park to the State of Idaho on the condition that a professional agency be created to manage it. Second, the federal Land and Water Conservation Fund was created. Statewide recreation planning was required to qualify for the federal funds, which were used to develop state and local recreation facilities. It would take a state agency to do that. Currently there are 30 state parks and recreational trailways in Idaho. This year we are celebrating 100 years of state parks in Idaho.

Even though Idaho has vast wildernesses and a high percentage of federal lands, the state does not have a single national park within its boundaries. However, the National Park Service administers several national monuments, a historical park and a national reserve in Idaho.
